

Third Of Soft Coal Miners Quit Work To Back Up Lewis

Pittsburgh, March 15 (AP)—More than one-third of the nation's 400,000 soft coal miners quit work today to support the demand of John L. Lewis for miner pensions.

An early tabulation showed more than 155,000 miners idle in eight states as follows: West Virginia, 60,000; Kentucky, over 40,000; Pennsylvania, 27,800; Illinois, 13,000; Ohio, 6,500; Alabama, 6,000; Indiana, 2,000; Tennessee, 300.

The U. S. Steel Corp. reported nine of its 14 western Pennsylvania pits were closed, with 7,000 miners idle. The corporation expected its coal output would drop today to about 20,000 tons, or one-third of capacity.

Others Closing Down

The Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp. reported all its Pennsylvania and West Virginia mines were closed, and 4,600 miners idle.

Republic was another steel corporation affected, with three Pennsylvania mines down. The output of steel company-owned pits is used in making fuel for steel mills.

Commercial mines, too, whose production is sold on the open market, began to shut. The giant Pittsburgh Coal company reported at least nine of its mines closed. Owners of some independent mines expected the movement to spread.

Back Pension Demand

Miners said the walkouts backed up demand of Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, for $100 monthly pensions for miners.

Two hundred and ten miners reported this morning to a strike pit at nearby Bridgeville but returned home. The firm's mine at Muse, Pa., a few miles distant, did not open. The Bridgeville pit produces about 1,800 tons daily; the Muse operation about 5,600 tons.

The Bridgeville diggers milled around the mine lamp house but made no attempt to obtain their working lights.

Then as one of the miners "threw away his water"—the traditional signal of a work stoppage in which the miner pours his day's supply of drinking water on the ground—the men walked away toward their homes.

TWO INJURED IN CAR CRASH

Harold Franklin, 25, of 30 North Washington street, suffered lacerations of the scalp at 11 p. m. Saturday night when an automobile he was driving ran off the road on a curve two miles south of Littlestown on Route 194 and overturned in a field, according to state police of the Gettysburg sub-station, who investigated.

Clyde Hubbard, 22, of 230 York street, riding in the car with Franklin, suffered lacerations of the face. Both were brought to the Warner hospital here, where they were treated and discharged.

Damage to Franklin's automobile was estimated by state police at $150. The investigation is being continued.

An automobile driven by Glenn Cole, 21, of Orrtanna, left the road and struck a pole on the Lincoln highway in Cashtown at 10 p. m. Saturday night, state police said. After striking the pole, the car swerved across the highway and struck a tree and the house of Paul Duane.

Cole was shaken up but was otherwise uninjured. Damage to the Duane home was estimated at $200 and to Cole's car $700. Police are also continuing their investigation of this accident.

13th Annual Inter-Fraternity Week-end At College Concludes With Dinners And Initiations

"Real character means meeting new situations with resolution and courage, and is not a matter of mere conformity to tradition," Dr. Norman Richardson, head of the department of philosophy at Gettysburg college declared, in an address given Saturday night at the 13th annual alumni reunion and Founder's Day banquet of Rho Deuteron chapter of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity at the Hotel Gettysburg. There were 160 present.

"Mere adjustment to the status quo is not the fundamental thing in character," Dr. Richardson continued. "Christ and Socrates were not merely adjusted to their times. We, like them, must contribute something above and beyond what we find around us."

Dr. Horace Barnes, head of the department of economics and business administration at Franklin and Marshall college, Lancaster, was also a speaker, and gave a historical sketch of the fraternity, which was founded 75 years ago at the University of Massachusetts. He stressed the ideals of the six founders, who, he said, all men of scholarship attainments, and top men in their class, and declared that since the beginning, an emphasis has been placed on scholarship by the fraternity. Dr. Barnes is a past national president of the fraternity.

Dr. Smoke Presides

Greetings of the college were brought by Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president, and Dean W. E. Tilberg. "Fraternities are distinctively American," Dr. Hanson pointed out. "Only in the United States and Canada are fraternities, as we know them, to be found." He and Dr. Tilberg praised the influence of the fraternities on the college.

The invocation was given by Dr. William Van Horn Davies, pastor of Messiah Lutheran church, Harrisburg. Following the addresses the Phi Sigma Kappa creed was repeated by members standing, and the college Alma Mater was sung. Dr. Kenneth Smoke, head of the department of psychology at the college, was the toastmaster.

Ladies at the speakers' table were introduced. They included Mrs. Hanson, Mrs. Smoke, Mrs. Tilberg, Mrs. Davis and Miss Dorothy G. Lee, dean of women.

Memorial Service

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock members of the fraternity held a memorial service in the Church of the Abiding Presence for Dr. Stewart W. Herman, national chaplain of the fraternity, who died December 16, 1947. Dr. Hanson was the speaker and Dr. Jacob Rudisill, Harrisburg, the liturgist.

Dr. Herman was a trustee of Gettysburg college from 1939 until the time of his death. He had been national chaplain of the Phi Sigma Kappa since 1934. He graduated from the college in 1899 and from the Lutheran seminary in 1902. He received his M. A. degree in 1902 and doctor of divinity degree from Carthage college in 1917 and Gettysburg college in 1919. On May 30, 1947, Dr. Herman received the annual meritorious service award from Gettysburg college. He was pastor of Zion Lutheran church, Harrisburg, from 1904 to the time of his death. During his pastorate the membership of the church increased from 758 to more than 2,300.

"The Gettysburg fraternity was the first SAE chapter north of the Mason-Dixon line," Fairbrain Gilkeson, Philadelphia, province archon of Sigma Alpha Epsilon told 150 members of the fraternity at the Founder's Day banquet Saturday night at the Battleground hotel in connection with inter-fraternity week-end.

"Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded in the south in 1856," the speaker said. "The formation of a chapter in Gettysburg was not planned originally, and came as something of an accident. It was established as a gesture by southern fraternity members toward healing the wounds of the Civil War," he said.

Mr. Gilkeson outlined the activities of the SAE national headquarters at Levere temple, Evanston, Ill.

Largest In U. S.

"Education is not learning, but the use of college education is one of the principles of the national fraternities, and is taught in the leadership school established by the national fraternity," Mr. Gilkeson said.

"Sigma Alpha Epsilon is the largest fraternity in the United States today both in size and wealth," the speaker added.

Mr. Gilkeson is a graduate of Cornell university. He was guest speaker at other SAE activities over the week-end.

The program at the Battleground hotel followed a dinner at 6:30 attended by more than 50 alumni as well as active members of the fraternity. Charles W. Dr. Weiland Experiments On Carriers Of Radioactive Atoms To Hidden Cancers Discovery of a possible carrier to take radioactive atoms directly into hidden cancers, was described to the American Association for Cancer Research Friday at Atlantic City by a Gettysburg resident, Dr. Glenn S. Weiland, 163 Carlisle street, associate professor of biochemistry at the University of Maryland, and Dr. Frank H. J. Pigge, professor of experimental anatomy at the university's school of medicine.

A carrier is described as a chemical that concentrates the "hot" atoms in the malignant growth, rather than elsewhere in the body. The atoms will burn away the malignant tissues either with gamma or other rays. But they will also burn other tissues equally, so that a good carrier has to put most of them in the cancer only.

Search for such a carrier has been a major goal ever since atomic piles began making a profusion of different kinds of radioactive atoms. There are now dozens of kinds of atoms that would burn out a cancer, provided they could be concentrated there sufficiently.

Use Man-Made Synthesis

The new carrier is a man-made compound, a combination of porphyrin and one or another metal.

In mouse experiments, Dr. Pigge and Dr. Weiland first discovered that porphyrin concentrates in cancers to some extent. Porphyrin is a chemical compound in blood and other living tissues and concentrates in cancer even when injected into

An operation was performed by specialists at the hospital and a metal shield "button" was inserted in her throat to correct the condition. After improving steadily for the last 14 months the youngster was returned to the Warner hospital on February 18.

Suzie remained a patient at the local hospital until March 6 during which time Mrs. Shultz was taught by hospital attendants the proper care and cleaning of the metal adjustment.

ARENDTSVILLE PLAY PLEAS

Approximately 500 attended the performances of "Three Wise Men," three-act comedy play, presented Friday and Saturday nights at the Arendtsville auditorium by the Arendtsville Community Fire company players.

SLIGHT DROP IN CRIME IN COUNTY IN '47

Although 1947 saw the first first-degree murder conviction in Adams county in more than two decades, a report completed today by the county clerk of the courts shows that crime in the county decreased last year from the 1946 level.

The report shows 127 defendants disposed of by the county courts during the year. Of that number 23 were dismissed; 12 were acquitted by juries and in one other case a no penalty decision was handed down; 48 entered pleas of guilty; 17 were found guilty by juries; five were sent to state prisons; 16 were placed on probation, 30 were committed to the local jail; 10 paid fines and 30 were given other sentences, such as surety bonds, or support orders.

Nineteen were placed on probation, or given suspended sentences, 44 went to the local jail, 24 paid fines and 33 got other sentences.

There was one robbery charge, with the defendant acquitted by a jury. Two were before the court on aggravated assault charges, one of whom pleaded guilty and the other was found guilty by a jury.

COSTA RICA IS HIT BY REVOLT

San Jose, Costa Rica, March 15 (AP)—A desperate Costa Rican government tried today to stem a revolution sweeping the nation. The opposition has virtually isolated the capital.

Seventy-five percent of San Jose's power plants have been blown up and opposition forces said they were trying to cut the remainder last night. The city's industry is at a virtual standstill. A general sit-down strike has been called for today.

Underground sources say the government has appealed to general Anastasio Somoza, former president and now strongman of Nicaragua, to send help as soon as possible.

Three Nicaraguan planes are here at the Sabana airport with their wing insignia painted out with yellow paint.

Jose Figueres, leader of the revolutionary forces, said over the underground radio he had wiped out half of the mobile unit sent to force him from his hidden mountain stronghold south of Cartago. This unit had been trained by the U. S. army.

Government troops earlier reported the capture of 11 men at Figueres' stronghold.

CITES COST TO COUNTY OF ERP

Washington, D. C., March 15—Representative Chester H. Gross of York, today made public figures to show what adoption of the European Recovery Plan will cost Adams county on the basis of a $17,000,000 appropriation to carry out the Marshall Plan.

Adams county's share of the E.R.P. program costs, figured on the basis of a population of 39,435, will amount to $5,061,452, or $126.23 per capita, the Congressman said.

The county's share for foreign aid from July 1, 1945 to June 30, 1947, is figured at $7,217,788.

In 1946, the Congressman said, $124,396 was collected in taxes in Adams county for the operation of the county government, which includes real estate, occupation, personal property taxes and all other county taxes.

The Adams county government, he said, could run 92.6 years with the money which will probably be spent "or foreign aid."

Washington, March 15 (AP)—Safely through the Senate, the $5,300,000,000 European aid program raced without a pause today toward quick challenges in the House. The pressure for speed is on—to bolster western Europe with American billions against Communism and collapse.

Paris, March 15 (AP)—Proposals to include western Germany and Spain in the European recovery program were expected today by the 16 nations conferring on the Marshall plan. Addition of the two countries would spread the program over all western Europe.

The decision was announced by Isa Nakhleh, New York representative of the Arab committee, as delegates of the United States, Russia, France and China went into their fifth and final session on Palestine.

DISTRICT PIAA FINALS LISTED TUESDAY NIGHT

Harrisburg, March 15 (AP)—Nine-teen scholastic basketball teams were still in the running today for the Class A state championship.

Three had already won district titles and were waiting for the start of the inter-district play-offs on Friday, March 19.

The district champions were Ford City, winner over McKeesport in District Seven by a score of 41-30; Westinghouse, representative in District Eight by virtue of winning the city title in Pittsburgh; and Bethlehem, winner over Palmerton, 61-48, to clinch District 11 honors.

The other finalists, who all meet in games tomorrow night, are as follows:

Eight Games Tuesday

District One—Norristown vs. Radnor at Penn. State.

District Two—Old Forge vs. Plymouth at Kingston.

District Three—York vs. Chambersburg at Hershey.

District Four—Williamsport vs. Conyngham Township at Bucknell university.

District Five—Berlin vs. Bedford at Somerset.

District Six—Altoona vs. Conemaugh high.

District Nine—Bradford vs. Punxsutawney.

District Ten—Erie Academy vs. Warren.

When the inter-district play starts on Friday two games will be played in the east and two in the west.

Future Pairings

The eastern pairings bring together the champions of Districts One and 11 at the Penn. State, with Norristown, defending champion, favored to clash with Bethlehem, and District Two's champion, either Plymouth or Old Forge, clashing with District Four's representative, probably Williamsport, at Kingston armory.

Training Camp Briefs

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 15 (AP)—The New York Yankees have the baseball experts second guessing themselves today.

Before the start of spring training the experts figured the Boston Red Sox as shoo-ins to capture the American League pennant due to the acquisition of some grade A talent from the St. Louis Browns.

Yesterday the Yanks met the favored Red Sox for the first time and took them into camp, 5-2, in ten innings with Joe DiMaggio's 350-foot third run homer breaking up the game.

Pasadena, Calif., March 15 (AP)—Pittsburgh's veteran left-hander Fritz Ostermueller, was scheduled to make his first start today when the Pirates play the Chicago White Sox.

Nick Strincevich and Elmer Singleton are other Pittsburgh pitchers slated for action. Honus Wagner, veteran Big coach, who has been ill with influenza, will return to Pittsburgh with this week.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 15 (AP)—In order to make room for another pitcher, Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics says he is "seriously considering" transferring Carl Schies into an outfielder. The A's boss said such a move would increase competition among the farmhands to fill the mound spot.

Clearwater, Fla., March 15 (AP)—Curt Simmons, the Philadelphia Phillies' young pitcher, gave such an impressive performance yesterday in the Phils' 9-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers he had the opposition "ohing" and "ahing."

"He can't miss," said Detroit centerfielder Roger Garmer, commenting on the O'Copy, Pa., hurler. "His fast ball takes off and he has that extra something that makes a major league pitcher."

Cleveland Clinches Western Loop Title

(By The Associated Press)
No matter how the Cleveland Barons fare in the coming American Hockey league playoffs few Cleveland fans will be griping.

The Barons have won their sixth western division title in one of the greatest stretch drives in the circuit's history.

They nailed down the flag Saturday with a 2-1 conquest of the Buffalo Bisons and continued their streak yesterday by fighting the Bisons to a 3-3 tie.

As a result of the deadlock, the Bisons fell into a second place stalemate with the Pittsburgh Hornets, early season pace-setters. The Hornets noosed out the New Haven Ramblers, 2-1.

In remaining games last night, the Indianapolis Capitals crushed the Washington Lions, 9-2 and the Eastern Division pennant winning Providence Reds turned back the St. Louis Flyers, 3-1.

Caldwell, who is an alumnus of Princeton, will present movies to help clarify his talk on offensive and defensive tactics. An exponent of the single wing, Caldwell is regarded as one of the top football strategists in the nation.

RETURN TO WORK

Erie, Pa., March 15 (AP)—Some 1,500 production workers resumed their duties at the Hummermill Paper company today after a 13-day strike resulted in an 11-cent-an-hour pay boost.

The strikers, members of district No. 50 of the United Mine Workers originally asked 12 cents more an hour, the company offered 10, and the 11-cent increase represented a compromise effected by state and federal labor mediators.

The Gettysburg high school scrubs copped 12 games while losing nine during the season just completed. Coach Howard Shoemaker's outfit won their last three games in a row. During the campaign the Maroons scored 510 points while their opponents landed 508.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Tampa, Fla., March 15 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds' big inducement to young ball players is a belief in holding farm operations to a minimum in order to give the athletes a quick chance at the majors.

"That's a talking point in signing young players," says Assistant President Gabe Paul. "We may have to send them back to the minors, but they get their shot."

Just by way of illustration, Ewell Blackwell pitched in two games for the Reds in his first pro season and had only one year in the minors before he returned to stay; Grady Hatton stepped right out of the army into the Cincinnati lineup; Kent Peterson had no minor league experience at all.

PROGRESSIVE PUNISHMENT

The New York Yankees had a string of 28 innings of exhibition ball without allowing a run when they faced the Reds Saturday.

Before the game Manager Bucky Harris, with mock solemnity, warned his pitchers: "The first man who allows a run goes to Newark; three runs he goes to Kansas City; three to Norfolk, four to Binghamton and five he's out of baseball."

Starter Spec Shea qualified for Binghamton in one inning—and you'll see him in a Yank uniform all season.

STEEL FACING NEW THREATS

Washington, March 15 (AP)—The government poised two new anti-trust threats over the steel industry today.

In Washington the Justice Department made ready for a "thorough investigation" into the whole range of recent price rises in steel products. This would extend and broaden the probe of February price jumps ordered by President Truman.

At the same time, federal lawyers prepared to ask an early trial at Trenton, N. J., against 18 companies producing stainless steel. The government seeks a permanent injunction against price fixing.

The Trenton case, three years old, already has brought fines totaling $240,000 against the companies who pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to criminal charges. The pending move, department official said, is on a civil complaint seeking to restrain any future collusion.

The government lawyers, it was learned, have decided to drop efforts to reach an agreement with the steel men which would end the case, like most anti-trust actions, in a consent judgment. Hence they have prepared a motion asking the Trenton court to bring the companies, as well as six individual defendants, to trial.

Some of the companies, including Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation of Pittsburgh are among the 16 producers whose offices the FBI entered last month seeking evidence of price collusion in the February round of increases on semi-finished steel.

END OF THE LINE

Ben Chapman, the Phillies' oneflery manager, says the only misunderstanding he ever had with anyone while he was playing in the majors was with Joe Cronin.

"That was mutual," Ben adds.

Most Miners In France Working

Paris, March 15 (AP)—The French Press agency reported that all but 2,000 or 3,000 striking coal miners returned to work today in northern France. A week-end walkout there involved 20,000 to 30,000 miners. It was led by the Communist-controlled general confederation of labor.

Police reported scattered clashes between Communists and supporters of Gen. Charles De Gaulle in central France over the week-end.

The Treaty Ratified: The Treaty of Peace between the commissioners of the United States and Mexico, which has been for two weeks under debate in the Senate, was ratified on Friday evening about 9 o'clock, by a vote of more than two-thirds — ayes 38, nays 15. The injunction of secrecy has not been removed, so that it is not known precisely what amendments have been made. It has now to be returned to Mexico for action by that government before it can be binding. The Daily News says a few more, or a few acres less — whether we pay ten or fifteen millions. We are heartily sick with war — of the blood and carnage — of the distress and misery it has brought upon us. Give us PEACE!

THE MAGIC OF THE STUDENT

Nothing is more inspiring than to walk into a great public or college library, and note the earnest faces dipping their minds into books. We ought to keep in mind that we are all lifetime students. Ever searching out, ever learning.

J. Brooks Atkinson quotes H. S. Salt, in his book about Thoreau, who said of Thoreau that "he was a student when he came to Walden. When he returned to Concord he was a teacher." And Mr. Atkinson remarks: "I prefer him as a student." So do I. Thoreau was forever seeking out, always learning something new, and writing it down. There was magic in his life as a student of birds, flowers, ideas, and human beings.

In early life the career of the Hon. William E. Gladstone fascinated me. He remained a student to his last days. So did Dr. Johnson. A few days ago I went over a list of the books in this great man's library. His reading must have been enormous. And Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, whom I have so often quoted in this column, once said that if a man had a library of 6,000 volumes, he "would do very well!"

A man may well be happy as a student of books, but as a student of human nature and of the mysteries and wonders of Nature, he attracts me most. There is to be found the greatest and most useful knowledge. Thus we may all become great students to the end of our days.

To live as a student, and to die as one, seems to me to be the fulfillment of a worthwhile life. There is magic in the student mind. I can understand why it is that teachers can work for so small pay, which is a great misfortune. Their minds keep drinking in the hopes of all under their care and inspiration. And yet, in a larger sense, every teacher is a student to students!

The great books of the world have been written by students, or by teachers who have gained their knowledge and inspiration from students. Lafcadio Hearn had practically no schooling at all, yet he attained great scholarship, as a lifelong student. He had the use of but one eye — but what he did with that eye and that brain of his is amazing, producing some 30 or so books, as his legacy to mankind.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Light."

TRAINING BY EXAMPLE

The children come and ask us, how and why, and where and when. And we say: "You'll learn the answers when you're women grown and men."

Just do the way we tell you, and the rules we make obey."

But, too oft, our own behavior doesn't square with what we say.

Oh, it's seldom: "Do as I do," for there never was a lad
But his father wished the youngster to be better than his dad.
And there never was a mother but along the years could see
The lady that her daughter would, in time, grow up to be.

We are glib enough with counsel; what is best we're quick to tell.
If the ears have paid attention, then we fancy all is well.

But, the eyes are better pupils, and we ought to train them, too,
By never doing anything we've told them not to do.

The task of training children isn't merely one of speech.
The example we must set them, if it's character we'd teach.

And there's none so wise with precept who can honestly reply
If his acts betray his teaching and the children ask him: "Why?"

In England after the vote on the Irish university bill, the Gladstone ministry resigned. The queen sent for Disraeli, the leader of the opposition, and requested him to organize a new ministry. He will have trouble in doing this, as he does not enjoy the public confidence, and besides with a strong majority to fight in the House of Commons from the beginning, and might be outvoted on the first test of controverted policy.

Should Disraeli or Derby fail to accept the premiership, Gladstone may be recalled, but he is said to be strongly averse to resume the cares of office.

The singing classes from Oak Ridge, Woodside, and Plank's, under Prof. Tilman, had a pleasant union on the 8th inst., in the Lutheran church in Heidelsburg. Resolutions were adopted complimentary of Prof. Tilman, thanking the congregation for the use of the church and the citizens of Heidelsburg for their classes.

GOOD TOOLS ARE REQUISITE FOR BEST GARDENS

A good gardener chooses a well-balanced combinations of garden tools and equipment and keeps them in good condition with proper care. Inventors and manufacturers each year add something to the standard needs. Those new developments which have lasting value and fill a definite need continue to be available.

Recent additions include a sprinkler-type hose, an ingenious aluminum plant label, some fine English pruning shears and a device to provide fertilizer at the roots of plants.

Implements to provide fertilizer at the roots of plants are not completely new, but there are various new developments from time to time. One of those on the market now is a long metal, needle-like point, a place at the top for a cartridge of the proper fertilizer, and proper threading to attach to the ordinary garden hose.

Portable Sprinkler
In addition to a balanced, regular fertilizer cartridge, this year an acid-fertilizer cartridge for use on evergreens and acid-loving plants is available. Other improvements include eleven threads of threading and tapping where the pipe connects to the head, an unbreakable acetate cartridge chamber and cartridges which are wrapped in heat-sealed cellophane.

The sprinkler-type hose is the first portable sprinkling system, as distinguished from movable single sprinklers. It consists of a 50-foot unit of plastic hose with five solid brass sprayers set at equal distances. Any individual sprayer may be turned on or off just by turning a nut. With them all turned off, it becomes a regular garden hose. The total weight is only eight pounds.

The new aluminum plant label is one of the simplest and most practical placed on the market. It consists of a flat piece of the light metal compound, with two slits on each side making it possible to bend these two side pieces of metal around a branch and through two slits at the end of the label. Thus the label will fit many size branches of shrubs and trees. An acid material for lettering comes out blackish and makes an indelible sign which will withstand many years of inclement weather. Also it is inexpensive.

Soil Testing Kit
One of the greatest of English swordsmiths and cutters is now making pruning shears for gardeners available to American gardeners for the first time this year. They are forged of sword-tempered steel and precision-made for long life and easy operation. Four styles are available, including a strong, double-cut type, a lighter weight in double or single cut especially good for roses, a fine all-purpose single cut with clasp, similar to the type many good gardeners have used for years, and a knife-cut type.

In addition to these newer items, it might be well to remind the gardener here, that every home should have a good soil-testing kit, of the size best suited for its needs. Other basic gardening needs include a smooth metal set of hand tools for hand-cultivating, weeding and transplanting, at least one good long-handled hand cultivator, one light-weight adjustable aluminum rake. Larger gardens will need certain other basic items.

Transplanted Trees Need Protection

Newly planted shade trees, whether along the street or in the backyard, need some protection at least during the first year after they are transplanted.

Such trees are subject to bark scalding, borer infestations and bark cracking. The best way to protect them is to wrap the trunk and lower branches with special "Tree Wrap" paper. This comes in rolls of various widths and is wrapped around the tree much as a surgical bandage is wrapped around an arm. It is left on the tree for a year or so, until it wears or falls off. Many horticultural supply stores sell "Tree Wrap."

Burlap bags or even heavy brown wrapping paper can be substituted, but either is less efficient and, of course, more unsightly.

First Steps In Grape Growing

A return to sound self-sustenance farming calls for a well rounded program of fruits, beginning with apples, pears and peaches and including down the list plums, cherries, quinces, grapes and brambles. In this scheme grapes perhaps surpass all other fruits for backyard and fence row sites. Therefore, they command a place in the suburban gardener's plans as well as on the farm.

Early spring or late winter is planting time, although many growers start plants in late fall. Nursery plants should be ordered soon for March 1 delivery. If plants arrive before March 1, they should be heeled in at once in a protected spot to prevent excessive loss of root moisture.

Grapes thrive on a wide range of soil types, but they prefer a well drained loam underlaid with a gravelly stratum to insure good drainage. Experienced growers stress the fact that grapes can stand poor fertility better than wet feet, although if given both fertility and good drainage they pay double dividends.

Readers who plan to plant grapes this spring should write their congressman at once for free copies of the following government publications:

F. B. 1893—Grape Diseases and Insects

F. B. 1936—Grapes For Different Regions

The Concord remains a favorite among blue grapes, especially for general home use. Moore Early is perhaps second among blue varieties. Catawba and Delaware are widely grown red varieties, with the Brighton claiming an equal place among the reds, for its earliness if not for its comparative quality. Niagara and Diamond are two good white grapes.

Where grape vines are not grown for shade and screen, as they frequently are in backyard roles, but are planned solely for fruit production, training on a two-wire trellis is advised. For this purpose posts are set 10 to 16 feet apart and vines are spaced eight feet apart. One wire is fastened around 30 inches from the ground, the other 54 to 56 inches. This method of training has many merits to commend it, among which are better air circulation, more penetration of sunlight, easier and more effective spraying, and less laborious harvesting.

Many readers have recently written the editor to inquire about how to prune young grape vines before they come into bearing. This is an important question because the vine's future productivity depends largely on this annual operation. Here are the rules:

away all but the strongest cane and prune it back to two buds.

Second spring—Cut away all but the strongest cane. If the growth of this is vigorous, allow it to reach the top wire; if not so vigorous, cut it off at or slightly above the lower wire. If the plant is still quite weak, prune it back again to two buds as at planting time.

Third spring—Cut away all but two good canes and prune these back so a total of 20 to 25 buds will not be exceeded.

It is wise to rub off all but two leafy shoots early in the summer of the first year.

Feed grape vines every spring with manure or nitrogenous fertilizer or both. Spray annually by the standard grape schedule to keep insect enemies under control and to prevent common grape diseases.

Strawberries And Vegetables Mix

Maximum satisfaction from strawberry plantings in the smaller garden will be gained if the strawberries are considered as part of the vegetable garden.

Make a new planting each year, setting the plants as early as possible, either from an old bed or from purchased stock. Spinach, lettuce and radishes can be grown as companion crops between the rows. They will be harvested by the time the strawberries need all the space between the rows (three or three and one-half feet apart).

The year after they are planted the spring-set plants bear their major crop, highest quality and largest quantity. Instead of weeding thinning and rejuvenating the old bed, turn it under as soon as the crop is picked and use the space for late succession crops such as cabbage, broccoli or celery. If a new planting is made every year, there need be no qualms about turning under the old.

Second crops, from plantings carried over the second winter, are never as large or as good quality as the first. It is usually more work to clean up and thin out the one-year planting for a second crop than it is to plant and care for a new one. By planting companion and succession crops as indicated, the strawberries occupy the soil exclusively only for one year.

SOME PLANTS INFEST SOIL

HOPEFUL THAT DDT WILL HELP SAVE ELM TREES

Prior to the advent of DDT, the prospect was remote of protecting living elm trees from attack by bark beetles, the principal carriers of the Dutch elm disease fungus. Now Federal and state research workers are hopeful that this material may protect trees from the beetles and prevent development of large beetle population in decadent wood.

It has been found that an emulsion containing two per cent DDT, applied properly, will kill bark beetles before they can feed on twigs and thus transmit the Dutch elm disease fungus. To control the early broods of beetles, such a spray should be applied in the spring before buds burst. This provides protection until mid-July, when a second spray containing one per cent DDT is necessary. The latter will provide protection for the remainder of the season. Both sprays will protect the elms also from "defoliator" insects such as elm leaf beetle larvae and cankerworms.

Phloem necrosis, caused by a virus, has already destroyed thousands of large elms throughout the middle west. Thus far it has not appeared in states along the eastern seaboard, but gardeners should be on the lookout for it and should report suspected trees to Federal or state authorities.

Watch for yellowing of the leaves and rapid decline of the tree in the absence of the more commonly known causes. If the tree has the necrosis disease, cutting into the trunk base with a sharp chisel will reveal yellowing and browning of the phloem tissue, which lies just beneath the bark and above the sapwood. A faint wintergreen odor of such affected tissue is another sign of phloem necrosis, though it is not always detectable.

Should a positive case be uncovered, the affected tree should be cut down and burned to prevent spread to near-by healthy elms.

The manner of spread from diseased to healthy trees is still unknown.

Tomatoes May Be Staked Or Free

Whether tomatoes should be grown on stakes or trellises or allowed to sprawl on the ground depends on conditions in the garden and the preference of the gardener.

The case for staking includes the following points: 1, makes garden more attractive in appearance; 2, produces fruit a little earlier; 3, keeps fruit up away from soil-bearing pests, and free from mud; 5, makes harvesting easier; 6, makes spraying or dusting more effective and easier to do.

Those who allow their tomatoes to grow on the ground cite the following advantages: 1, no labor or pruning or tying; 2, more fruit, in the aggregate; 3, no expense for stakes and twine; 4, fewer plants needed for a given area.

For tomatoes in the small backyard garden stakes or trellises have an advantage.

UNION OF ALL IRELAND SEEMS TO BE DISTANT

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Eamon de Valera undoubtedly was voicing the burning hope of his people when he predicted in New York the other day that Eire and northern Ireland ultimately would be united into one nation.

His prediction also was pleasing to the ear of the host of Irish Americans who welcomed him back to the city of his birth. The fighting Irishman, who lost the prime ministership of Eire as the result of the recent general election, after holding that position 16 years, declared the day will arrive when an Irish leader will come to the United States and announce that Ireland "from sea to sea is now completely free."

"I admit," he added, "that I would like to be that person."

No Time Limit

I've known Mr. De Valera a long time and have so much respect for his acumen that I certainly wouldn't challenge his forecast. However, I note that he didn't place any time limit on the prediction. Of course time heals a lot of wounds but, having studied that situation at close range for many years, I should say that the chances of an early union are rather slim.

It's hard to believe it possible that there could be such a clash of interests between two sections of a tight little isle like the Land of Silver Lakes and the Shamrock. But the bitterness of the differences has been recorded in blood many times through the generations.

The chief difficulty has been religious. Northern Ireland — or "Ulster," as the old timers like to call it — is preponderantly Protestant while Eire is largely Catholic. Many heads have been cracked with shillings in that argument.

Other Differences

However, there are other differences. Northern Ireland of course is a part of the United Kingdom—a very important part which England can't afford to lose. Many of the people are of Scotch, Welsh and English descent, so that the racial element enters into the situation. Then, too, northern Ireland is comparatively rich with its ship-building and linen manufacturing, and many of its citizens maintain that if they joined the less prosperous south they would have to carry the burden of taxation for the whole country. That argument—since it hits the pocketbook—is a powerful one.

I should say the position at the moment is about what it was some 15 years ago when I broached the subject during a chat with the late Lord Craigavon, then prime minister of northern Ireland. A huge man, who towered far above six feet, he was leaning against the mantel in his office, as he exploded:

"Union with southern Ireland — Never! Never! Never! And when I am gone there are other leaders who will take up the fight."

He punctuated this by slamming a fist as big as a ham into the palm of his other hand. It's my guess that that were he alive today, the answer would be the same.

3 CHURCH-GOERS KILLED IN CRASH

Harrisburg, March 15 (P)—Three church-goers were killed here yesterday when a trailer-truck failed to round a sharp curve and overturned.

A woman and her five-year-old son were crushed against a wall, while another boy died before an ambulance could get him to a hospital.

State policeman George Weimer identified the victims as Mrs. Norman Ensor, 43, her son, Edward, 5, and Raymond Stone, also five.

Mrs. Naomi Zeigler, 18, daughter of Mrs. Ensor, was critically injured in the crash, but saved the life of her eight month old son, Daniel, by tossing him to safety as the truck bore down on the little family. Mrs. Zeigler was removed to the Harrisburg hospital.

The truck driver, John E. Glester, of Avenel, N. J., was taken to the Harrisburg hospital suffering from concussion, minor injuries to the back, and contusions. He was later discharged from the hospital and held by the state police.

Pvt. John Micka, of the state police, took Glester before Justice of the Peace William Dosh, at Carlisle, and charged him with aggravated assault and battery by automobile.

Back Country Is 'Bombed' With Feed

Philipsburg, Pa., March 15 (P)—Scores of sportsmen took to the air yesterday to distribute feed to wild game.

Remote parts of a six-county area were "bombed" with feed bags, automobiles were deployed to more accessible sections.

Many of the sportsmen were from the Pittsburgh district. The first plane in the "wild life squadron" was piloted by Col. Harry C. Fry, Jr., commander of the Pittsburgh district of the Civil Air Patrol, who said he dropped 25 bushels of corn.

ELEPHANTS CAN'T VOTE

Chapter 16

Harold Moore had succeeded in bringing both Carolyn Martell and Eddie Gale to his home for a conference. It would be an exaggeration, however, to say that he had brought them together. Carolyn, cool and distant, greeted Gale with somewhat less cordiality than she would have expressed to the mailman.

"We haven't known each other very long," Moore began. "So I might be presumptuous in expecting to ask your help." He looked at each of them in turn, his attentive brown eyes studying their faces. "But I think I know you well enough to trust you in anything that will make the zoo a going concern."

"We think the zoo's pretty important to this town—especially the kids; if that's what you mean," Eddie acknowledged, without realizing that the "we" had instinctively included Carolyn.

She nodded her head affirmatively.

"I'm new here, and naturally you'd expect me to be a little uneasy—even jealous, for that matter—toward Major Fortune," he resumed. "Keep that in mind when I tell you why I've brought you to my home." He paused to let the statement take full effect, then added flatly: "I think Fortune has been juggling the books at the zoo; that he's been concealing the real records of supplies and purchases to cover up his own graft."

"Doesn't surprise me," Eddie commented, deciding to put his own discoveries regarding Fortune at Moore's disposal. "We've known for some time that he was secretly backing the civil-service suit against the zoo. Carolyn found that out."

"Not really," Carolyn amended. "Eddie learned most of it — and something about Fortune's past graft, as well." She realized, belatedly, that she had spoken of Gale by his first name for the first time since they quarreled—and was not certain whether she regretted doing so. "You're the first person we've told that to—so you see, we didn't have enough of a case to back it up."

"I've been placed in the same position," Moore said. "Now, though, I think we can act if we can get our hands on the secret records of Fortune's crooked dealing."

"How do we come in on that?" Gale asked.

"I think those records are still around the zoo somewhere," Moore said. "Fortune doesn't know that I suspect their existence, but if he sees me snooping around, he's certain to hide them out of our reach—or destroy them. You two have access to the zoo buildings—I'll give you any keys you don't have already—and you can look around as if you were covering a publicity assignment. Tony Ricco, the keeper, is playing along with us too, so you won't have to worry about him."

Carolyn, concentrating deeply, produced a concrete proposal: "Say, why don't we pretend to be lining up a feature about all the zoo improvements that have to be made—that would take us just about anywhere on the grounds."

"Ye gods, yes!" Eddie remarked. "If there's anything in that outfit that doesn't need improvement, science hasn't discovered it."

Carolyn attempted, not quite successfully, to suppress a grin.

"Well, let's go," Eddie said and Carolyn took the suggestion without remembering to be as difficult with him as she had planned.

In the next two days, they roomed the zoo from one end to the other, apparently taking notes and pictures of every rusted cage, broken section of flooring and storm-damaged roof.

Their search had reached the basement of the administration building for the second time without locating the missing books. Weary and discouraged, they stood in one of its low-ceilinged, musty hallways, looking at the locked doors which opened off it.

"I'll swear we've been in all of these," Eddie said. "But they're worth taking one more look through—just in case."

They prowled through six of the basement's eight storage rooms without success, poking through hundreds of duty crates, moth-eaten furs and a mummified menagerie of stuffed owls, squirrels, lizards and game fish.

In the seventh room, they found the same ponderous, ungainly, life-size, cloth-and-wood model of a bison that had given Carolyn a bad fright the first time she encountered it on their previous visit.

"I wonder why they'd keep a relic like that around," Eddie mused. "Nothing but junk—the shape it's in." He looked at the battered, torn covering of the bulky body, tapping it idly with his knuckles. At one point, the wooden framework, located near the head, had a deep, substantial sound when he struck it. In all other sections of the model, his tap rang hollowly through the cavernous room.

"That's funny," he remarked. "The thing must be solid at the neck." Carolyn looked at him impatiently. "For heaven's sake stop fooling with that monstrosity," she exclaimed. "Let's get out of here; this place gives me an advanced case of shivers."

More from defiance than any other motive Eddie poked his hand into a jagged opening just ahead of the bison's foreleg. His hand closed over some object inside and his eyebrows rose in astonished wonder. "What in the heck is in here?" He fished deeper, pulling out a portable cardboard file, about 12 inches high and five inches thick. He snapped open the file with intense interest, disclosing a sheaf of old bills and receipts.

"Take a look at that," he announced, striving to repress his exultance. Carolyn read on the bill-head "The Right-Way Builders," with Major Fortune's name written underneath.

Carolyn gave a cry of delight and the two of them began poring over the contents of the file, shouting at each new discovery.

"These are Fortune's records!" Eddie shouted. "We've got enough stuff here to hang him from the gallows at dawn tomorrow! Oh, brother!"

"If you weren't so nosy..." Carolyn began, and finished by kissing him so emphatically that he dropped the entire file.

Chapter 17

"I wasn't really mad at you," Carolyn declared as Eddie Gale held her tightly, lifting her feet clear of the ground. "I was just annoyed about that crazy story on the chimpanzee."

Eddie kissed her once more and set her back on her feet with a laugh.

"Not mad, eh?" he asked mockingly. "If you'd have been any madder, I'd have searched under the house for bombs." He shook his head reprovingly. "Who would have thought that such a beautiful girl, such a gentle, kind-hearted creature, could have a temper like a puff-adder?"

Carolyn flared up instantly, exactly as he had intended. His laugh, however, dissolved her anger.

"You wouldn't laugh if you saw how Framingham took your little experiment in ape-analysis," she chided him. "He was building up to a towering rage that would have set a new altitude record; then I told him the story wasn't my idea and he just looked foolish."

"Like you did a second ago?" he inquired.

"Why, I..." she snapped. But she saw that he was simply baiting her and relaxed, smiling. "Nope—I won't get mad again," she declared firmly.

"Glad to hear it," he laughed. "But confidentially, that brush-off you gave me turned me into such a grouch that I used to go home and growl at my dog. Got so he wouldn't come near me."

"He probably read that chimp story you promoted," she told him. "A thing like that would turn a dog from his master."

"We've got to get these to Framingham," Eddie said as he gathered them up from the floor where they fell when Carolyn had kissed him. "He has the other set of books from the zoo; when he compares them with these, he'll have enough to get rid of Billy Fortune."

The two of them went to Framingham's office together, Eddie stopping along the road to buy an orchid corsage which he pinned proudly on Carolyn's shoulder.

Eddie explained the circumstances under which they had found the bills, telling Framingham of his earlier discovery that Fortune was the real backer of the civil-service suit against the zoo.

"Here's a bill from the Right-Way Builders," Eddie related as he handed the paper to Framingham across his desk. "You probably remember when the state auditor accused Fortune of taking graft from that company on a construction job."

"I certainly do," the lawyer assented. "These must be the bills that the auditor was never able to find." He inspected the bill minutely, frowning. "This totals up to $5,000!—and the repair work and construction couldn't have come to more than half that."

"That's right — and the odd $2,500 is what the company split with Fortune," Eddie said.

Framingham nodded and began studying several other bills from the dusty file. He singled out one, commenting, "Here's a bill of five hundred dollars for an elephant, dated four years ago." He pushed a buzzer summoning his secretary.

"Miss Walsh," he said when she appeared. "Will you please get me that file on the purchase of the zoo elephant?"

The secretary returned in a few minutes with the file, and Framingham pored over it attentively.

"According to these records, Fortune paid $1,000 for the Maharani on the same date given in that bill you've discovered," he declared. "It seems quite clear that the extra five hundred dollars was pure inflation — and the real value of that animal made it a very poor risk for carrying passengers. Even Fortune must have known that quite clearly."

"Didn't the city ever audit the bills when they ran the zoo?" Gale asked incredulously.

"Apparently the politicians took good care to see that the zoo appropriation wasn't broken down into any accurate listing of purchases or income from concessions," Framingham said. "The few records I was able to obtain from Fortune showed that he traded and bought animals entirely as he pleased. Even his inventory of the number of animals in the collection was largely a fabrication; I'm almost convinced he listed all the rats and mice that roamed at large on the grounds."

Framingham removed his prison-glasses, and there was no further doubt that his from repeated genuine anger, no less genuine for the fact that it was under complete control.

"I have a feeling that Major Fortune may find it an appropriate time to seek further opportunities elsewhere," he said slowly. "Naturally, I trust this will remain confidential with us until I decide what action to take."

Eddie and Carolyn heard nothing further of Framingham's action for the next two days, but it was not their paramount concern just then. The time they had, in the joy of reconciliation, was for each other.

"You've been wonderfully sweet, Eddie," she said softly. "But please, let's not get serious. Not yet. I've got so many things in my mind while this zoo campaign is on that I can't be certain of anything else."

He shrugged his shoulders regretfully.

"All right, dream child — but don't interpret this temporary retreat as Gale's defeat. I'll be back again — and again after that. And right now, I'm going to do my damndest to clear up this zoo tangle; for selfish reasons, as well as civic ones." He shook his head. "Imagine having a whole menagerie for my rivals!"

The events of the next morning returned them both to the zoo campaign with a shock. Framingham

POLICY TOWARD RUSSIANS HAS BEEN REVERSED

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER N

Washington, March 15 (P)—American policy toward Russia has swung—or been pushed by the Soviets—to almost the opposite pole since President Truman met Premier Stalin at Potsdam two and a half years ago.

The chief executive came home from that historic British-Soviet-American meeting saying: the three powers "are now more closely than ever bound together in determination to achieve a just and lasting peace."

Today the President admits that his faith in eventual world peace is somewhat shaken although he still believes peace is attainable. He has committed the United States to oppose the spread of Communism anywhere.

To that end the State Department is said to be studying ways to back up American economic aid to western Europe with strong political action and possibly military support. The President's military leaders—informed them that Fortune had been fired — and had immediately sued for reinstatement by the City Council!

Secretary of Defense Forrestal and the top land, sea and air chiefs—have been meeting in Key West, Fla., to determine exactly how the armed forces should operate in event of a war.

Congressional leaders are putting the Marshall plan for European recovery through the legislative mill on a speedup schedule. Secretary of State Marshall has cautioned that delay in action much beyond month's end might strengthen the Communist bid for power in Italy at the April 18 elections there.

New Purpose

From outside the government, but reflecting views that are widely held among officials, former Secretary of States Byrnes has called on the administration to act now to block any Russian threat to Greece, Turkey, Italy or France.

In a speech in South Carolina Saturday Byrnes urged that the government to serve direct warning on Moscow that it will not see those nations endangered. He advocated backing up the warning with a revived draft law.

These activities represent the end result of what administration officials regard as a long and persistent effort on the part of the American government first to get along with Russia but, failing that, to hold Communist expansion in check.

Henry Bessemer, an English metallurgist, invented a revolutionary steel-making process in 1856, and the Bessemer method opened the doors to mass production of steel.

FARM SELECTED FOR CONTOURING

Harrisburg, March 15 (P)—The 83-acre farm of a World War II sailor has been selected for Pennsylvania's second demonstration in contour farming.

John A. Smith, secretary of the state committee of the Federal Production and Marketing Administration, said Federal farm agencies have joined in giving Russell Confer, of the Mahoning Valley, Carbon county, an extra start on his farming career.

Confer, veteran of two and one-half years' naval service, bought the farm with help under the GI Bill of Rights. He plans to develop the place into a dairy farm.

"We are going to contour the farm completely," Smith explained. "Members of PMA committees from 24 eastern Pennsylvania counties will be invited to see the operation to be held in early May. In addition, GI farm trainees also will be spectators."

Smith said the demonstration will take two days and that plans for the contouring already have been worked out on maps by engineers of the Federal Soil Conservation Service.

AT NO INCREASE IN PRICE!

While Other New Car Prices Are Advancing

HERE'S WHY Kaiser-Frazer can make this announcement while other new car prices spiral upward. Kaiser-Frazer controls its own supply of many basic raw materials... has its own engine plant, foundry and steel mill. Materials from these sources funnel into new and modern Willow Run—the largest automobile manufacturing plant in the world under one roof.

Unfinished steel goes in one end of this great plant and comes out a quality automobile, ready to be driven away. All this is accomplished in a matter of hours, and with the economy of Kaiser-Frazer straight-line production. This is an achievement of men who are injecting new methods and ideas into an old industry.

In the new 1948 Kaiser, Frazer, Kaiser Custom, and Frazer Manhattan you get all the features that others have attempted to copy since Kaiser-Frazer design was introduced in 1947.

So far no one has been able to more than approximate the graceful exterior body lines. No one has come near matching the roadability... the ride resulting from seats cradled between the front and rear wheels, such wide seats with both elbow and shoulder room. And none have the style features, the wide choice of colors and fabrics.

You get all this plus the many refinements made possible by years-ahead engineering and design. And, of course, all 1948 Kaiser or Frazer cars have the new Goodyear 24-pound pressure Super-Cushion tires that make bumps something you see but never feel.

Enjoy a ride today in America's newest new cars—the 1948 cars that have not gone up in price!

SIX WORKMEN DIE IN BLAST

Louisville, Ky., March 15 (AP)—Six workmen were killed and at least 20 others injured today in an explosion at the International Harvester Farm Equipment company plant.

Cause of the explosion had not been determined hours after the blast demolished a 150 by 75 foot brick and steel building in which engines made in the nearby main plant were tested.

Normally about 50 of the company's 4,000 employees worked in the test building but the explosion took place just as the night shift was leaving and the day shift was arriving so officials were not sure how many men were in the building at the time.

Fire following the blast soon was extinguished. Then police and volunteers aided the firemen in rescue work which was hampered by intense heat and the fact that the basement of the building was flooded.

There were two 5,000 gallon fuel tanks under the test building but firemen said they apparently did not explode as first reported.

MAY BE "TOO LATE"

Norristown, Pa., March 15 (AP)—The U. S. preparedness program may have been delayed "too long," says Frank C. Hilton, Pennsylvania commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Speaking at a VFW dinner Saturday night, Hilton said: "If we are not careful, we will be drawn totally unprepared into another war that may well mean the end of all wars—with defeat for us and the free nations of the earth."

82ND AIRBORNE
LOSES 'SLIM JIM'
GAVIN TO FIFTH

FL. BRAGE, N. C., March 15 (AP)—A hundred and fifty combat veterans of the Eighty-second Airborne Division stood waiting as the slender man with two stars on his shoulder stepped to the microphone.

They were survivors of "the Devils in Baggy Pants" who made four combat parachute jumps in Europe and helped turn back the German tide in the Battle of the Bulge.

They were gathered to hear the farewell address of their leader, Maj. Gen. "Slim Jim" Gavin, who has been promoted to chief of staff of the Fifth Army in Chicago.

"I'm not here to say 'goodbye,' because I'll really never leave the division," said General Jim. "I'll always be here in spirit."

And for about five minutes he told them in simple soldierly language what it had meant to him to be their leader. He said that their division "will never die," and what they had done in its name gave them an immortality too. When he finished, there wasn't a man in the room who wouldn't willingly have followed him off to another war.

The farewell marked another climax in one of the most brilliant military careers of the modern American army. It meant a step up for "Slim Jim," but it left 17,000 division troopers saddened at the loss of a commander they had loved for his youth, his friendliness—and his fighting ability.

Vets Stand With Him

I have met a number of generals who were liked personally by their men—and a number who weren't. But I never saw one who took their hearts more than "Slim Jim," who in 1944 became the youngest ground force general at the age of 37.

At 41 he is now the army's recognized authority on airborne operations, which he feels will play a determining role in future warfare.

It was like Gavin that when the time came for his final review, he should think first of the veterans who had followed him out plane doors over Sicily, Italy, France and Holland. So the 150 who are still with the division shared the review honors, facing him in two formations as all their newer comrades paraded by.

Rare Compliment

Up came bald 50-year-old Staff Sgt. Charles (Pop) Burt to introduce his wife, Burt, a cook, finally got to make the Sicily jump after he insisted: "My men can't fight unless they eat, I'm gonna go along and see they havechow."

"Pop" jumped all right—but he landed on a stone and broke his foot.

Two other troopers started kidding each other about the jump they made in Italy, and Tech. Sgt. Samuel B. Bowen of Redvale, Colo., jeered: "Man, if you'd dug a hole two feet deeper we could have tried you for desertion."

When Gavin left, his men stood around for a while talking about him—as they'll be doing whenever men of the 82nd gather.

"There never was a better man," said one trooper, and then gave him a compliment soldiers rarely pay their generals: "He wouldn't ask you to do anything he wouldn't do."

That's why they'll never forget "Slim Jim" Gavin.

The Littlestown fire company was called out at noon today to extinguish a grass fire on the Thomas McSherry development, Delaware avenue, Littlestown. One hose line was used in putting out the fire. The grass is believed to have caught fire from a nearby rubbish fire.

GEN. MEYERS IS GIVEN UP TO FIVE YEARS IN PRISON

Washington, March 15 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers today was sentenced to 20 months to five years in prison.

A federal jury convicted him last Friday on three counts of inducing a former business associate to lie under oath to a Senate committee.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff, when imposing sentence, said the 52-year-old retired general was guilty of a "very grave and serious offense."

The maximum sentence he could have imposed was 30 years.

Points To Record

Meyers stood erect and apparently unmoved, as Judge Holtzoff told him: "Bennett E. Meyers, it is the judgment of this court that you be imprisoned in an institution to be designated by the Attorney General of the United States for a term of not less than 20 months and not more than 5 years."

Meyers was immediately led from the court room by federal marshals. After the jury's verdict last week, attorneys for the wartime Air Force deputy purchasing chief had announced they would appeal the verdict. Holtzoff at that time said he would not allow bond while the case was being appealed.

Just before Holtzoff passed sentence, Robert T. Bushnell, attorney for Meyers, pleaded that the court consider Meyers' "outstanding" war record.

Jaunty Air Gone

Bushnell said: "I say the punishment this man has already gone through—by being pilloried from coast to coast like a Benedict Arnold—is a punishment greater than it is in this court's power to impose."

The formal accusation against Meyers was "subornation to perjury." He was charged with persuading Blériot LaMarre to lie to Senate investigators and cover up Meyers' wartime operation of a plane parts company from which the government alleged that Meyers received more than $150,000. LaMarre was the president of the company, but later said he was only a "dummy" for Meyers.

Meyers arrived at the court room 15 minutes before the time set for his sentencing. For the first time he seemed to have lost some of that jaunty air he kept throughout the Senate investigation and during his trial.

As he came up the court house steps he kept his head down. Much of the old bounce seemed gone.

EIGHT HURT IN BLAST

Mt. Union, Pa., March 15 (AP)—Eight persons were under hospital treatment today for injuries suffered in an explosion which wrecked the basement and first floor of a three-story brick building. The explosion occurred late Saturday in this Huntingdon county town in the boiler room of the Appleby building, causing damage unofficially estimated at upwards to $50,000.

Washington (AP)—U. S. officials estimate that 50 per cent of U. S. World War II dead in foreign countries will be permanently buried in foreign cemeteries.

TAFT AND BREWSTER
Unhurt In Crash

Vassalboro, Me., March 15 (AP)—An airplane carrying Republican presidential aspirant Robert A. Taft and Senator Owen Brewster (R-Me.) plunged today into the Kennebec river but Brewster said neither he, Taft nor the pilot was hurt.

Brewster said John T. Clark, pilot of the Maine aeronautics commission plane, "did a great job" setting the craft down when it developed engine trouble en route from Augusta to Bangor.

The plane was slightly damaged. Taft, Brewster and Clark made their way with some difficulty. Brewster said, to the snowy river bank and telephoned to the state-house where Gov. Horace A. Hildreth dispatched his official car to help Taft keep Bangor speaking appointments.

Packers Reject Arbitration Plan

Chicago, March 15 (AP)—Two of three major meat packers turned down yesterday an offer to arbitrate their wage dispute with the CIO United Packinghouse Workers who have called a nationwide strike for 12:01 a. m., tomorrow.

The arbitration proposal was sent to Swift and Company, the Cudahy Packing Company and Armour and Company but Swift and Cudahy quickly rejected. They said they were standing pat on their offer of a nine-cent an hour wage boost.

The union, which had originally demanded a 29-cent-an-hour increase for its 100,000 members said it would call off the strike if the companies would accept arbitration of the 20 cents difference.

Armour has not replied to the proposal but the union said it would arbitrate with that company alone if it accepted.

Burglar Routed At Coach's Home

Bryn Mawr, Pa., March 15 (AP)—Maj. Albert A. Thomas, football and golf coach at the Valley Forge Military Academy, last night routed a burglar from the bedroom of his five-month-old son, John Leland Thomas.

Police said Maj. Thomas told them he and his wife were sleeping on the second floor of their Bryn Mawr home when they heard a door squeak.

Thomas ran to his son's bedroom in time to see a man jump through an open window, police said. A search was made of the neighborhood without success. Neither the boy nor his sister, Merry, four, who was sleeping in another bedroom, was disturbed by the intruder.

STORMS TO BURY PLANE VICTIMS

Anchorage, Alaska, March 15 (AP)—Storms threatened today to bury the last trace of a crashed Northwest Orient Airlines DC-4 which carried 30 persons to their death high up on towering Mount Sanford.

The forecast of bad weather increased the probability that the bodies of the 30 victims will remain entombed on the 16,208-foot peak.

The four-engined airliner, en route from Shanghai to St. Paul, crashed Friday night on a glacier of the mountain 190 miles northeast of here.

Aboard the chartered plane were a crew of six and 24 seamen flying from Shanghai to New York. They were crewmen of the tanker Sunset, of the Overseas Tankship Corp. Two Pennsylvanians were listed among the passengers. They were Robert J. Rabich, Easton, and John R. Comcheck, West Hazleton.

Even after brief glimpses of the crash scene Saturday, authorities were generally agreed that the danger of slides probably would make it impossible to reach the wreckage.

The ill-fated plane, piloted by Capt. James Van Cleef of Minneapolis, crashed into a horseshoe-shaped pocket of the mountain less than half an hour after it passed over the Gulkana CAA range station, apparently on course and at 11,000 feet altitude.

The big ship tore into a sheer ice and rock cliff at the same elevation, then slid 2,500 feet down the glacier. Only bits of the plane were visible at the bottom of a fire-blackened trail left by the blazing wreckage.

When a normal individual is quiet and resting, his heart contracts about 70 times a minute.
